LOVING OUR NEIGHBORS
THIS DECEMBER

The memes, captions, and thoughts that have permeated this year have all been overwhelming. Change, distance, and masks have been the markers of what was otherwise “planned” to be another step on the ladder of life. But God. Yes, that’s right: but God. But God created opportunities for us to individually think through what we truly value and put time toward. He has made known to us what matters in our lives and how we show it, not only with our voice but also with our actions. But God kept going. Our families were changed. We have suffered the loss of loved ones, seen others isolated, distanced through difficult times, and weathered the storms of that loss while unable to grieve in familiar, cherished ways. These days have been trying. These days have been like a fire, revealing characteristics and attitudes we have and seeing how those affect others — but God.

But God was not done; He was not through. He had not decided to quit or walk away. His is not a role that left Him absent or removed but intimately aware of and involved in these most difficult of days. As we read through God’s Word, we know that every time something of this magnitude comes, we should ask God, what? What do You want me to do? What are You saying, and how do You want me to respond? How can I join You in this time? And there, in the midst of the struggle and the difficulties, in the midst of the pain and change (who on earth wants to change anything more than their clothes at this point?) God was present and bidding us, come and follow after Me.

Here He is, right now. As the year comes to a close, we look at the Christmas season in a way that we have never seen it before in our lifetime. God invites us to continue to join Him in His work today. Oh yes, church, God is at work, and nothing in this world could ever hinder or stop His working in and through His people. These days have provided so much opportunity for gospel conversations, and we want to equip you for even more as the world turns their attention to the Christmas season. This season we want to invite you to join God in taking the gospel to your neighbors, your neighborhood, your coworkers, and all of Jonesboro. We want every single person within our city to know and experience this Christmas with Joy; Joy that comes only from personal knowledge of Jesus as their Lord and Savior. We will accomplish this one week at a time for the first three weeks of December. Starting each of those Sundays (December 6, 13, and 20), we want to equip you to do so with your family.

On December 6, we will have 3 “Joy” door-hangers for each family to pick up and prepare to deliver to neighbors. You and your family will be able to decorate these, even going as far as having kids write what brings them joy on the back. These are a great conversation starter to share the gospel. On December 13, we will have Christmas cookies that were baked in our very own kitchen and wrapped for you to take and give out as well. These will be assembled safely by Ginger and her crew of helpers, following all ADH guidelines. The last week, December 20, we will go to our neighbors and invite them to the Christmas Eve Service, December 24 at 5 pm.

This is the time of year to see God advance His Kingdom, and He wants to do so through you. What a great time to tell someone about Jesus!

He didn’t just come to remain a baby; He came to be our Risen Lord and Savior. Let Him be so this season as you tell others about Him. We love y’all!

Robin Caldwell's Story

I wouldn't have known Jesus, but God moved me.

My parents were in their late teens when I was conceived. I was unexpected and my biological dad was not involved with our family. He eventually went to jail for drug dealing and drug trafficking. My mother was married and divorced seven times, so I had many stepfathers. In the midst of so much instability, my maternal grandmother was a constant. She and her family were a huge influence on my life. They first got me involved in church and are part of the reason I'm involved today.

After my mother's fourth divorce, we lived in an alley behind Humphrey Baptist Church. We liked to call ourselves "back-door Baptists." Since transportation was certainly not an issue, I could attend Sunday School and church every week, not just while I was at my grandmother's house. I attended every event possible at the church, including summer camp. It was at summer camp that I realized that I was a sinner and in need of a Savior. If I remember correctly, that was the summer of 1975, just before my 4th-grade year. Mrs. Janette McGee was the first Sunday School teacher I had after becoming a believer. She was a beautiful and sweet soul and had a big impact on me. I probably tested her faith and made her want to pull her hair out. I am so thankful for her willingness to stick it out to be a Sunday School teacher; I am a life changed.

I could've strayed away from Christianity, but God gave me people to guide me.

A couple of years later we moved to Stuttgart, a larger town just ten miles up the road. I was no longer able to step out of my front door and into a church building. Inconvenience created inconsistency in my church attendance, and it quickly fell out of my weekly schedule. We moved five or six more times before I completed high school. God strategically put His warriors around me in the midst of me making poor choices that did not reflect good character. In school, He used beautiful teachers who guided and molded me and pointed me back towards God when I began to wander away. An English teacher, a math teacher, an Agriculture teacher, a band instructor, and a wonderful high school counselor all poured into my life and helped show me the way to go. I keep in touch with a few of these people even today. Some are now in heaven, reaping their rewards.

Top: Robin met Darren as a single mom to Kelsey. They celebrated 26 years of marriage this year.

Bottom: Darren and Robin have 3 children: Kelsey, Sydney, and Parker.

In my college years, things began to get off course. After a failed first marriage, I needed all the people God kept placing in my path to point me onward. They showed me discipline as well as the encouragement of the Lord's promises for me of hope and a future. God's hand was all over my life as I re-entered college as a single mother to Kelsey. By this point, shame and embarrassment flooded my life. I struggled deeply with insecurities. Just walking through life felt like I was never wanted or planned for. Like I was never intended to happen. It is in these dark times that the Lord again equipped me, encouraged me, and directed me through His army of fellow believers. As I entered a new season of life, God continued to discipline me, bless me, and encourage me to walk as a woman who reflects the qualities laid out in Proverbs 31. I certainly don't think I have achieved that, even now. But I continue to chase after that goal.

I was insecure, but God brought me out of my shell.

In chasing after God, he called me out. He thrust me into situations that made me climb out of my thick shell of insecurity. Through the strength of the Lord, I was able to finish college with a degree in Radiologic Technology. God gave us my husband, Darren. Later, He blessed us with two more wonderful kids, Sydney and Parker. A shy man by no means, opposites truly do fit best. God brought many relationships into healing; He brought me into forgiveness of an earthly imprisoned biological father. He showed me that I am not a teenage pregnancy mistake. He created me intentionally with

His hands to fulfill a purpose He created me to fulfill. Through it all, I've learned to live a life where I try to be more obedient and follow God more intentionally.

Pro-Life became a twinge in my heart, yanking and pulling at my heartstrings. Keep in mind, insecurity and shyness do not mix well with taking a stand for something. Especially one of the ten commandments: Thou shalt not kill. As I prayed, God increasingly placed this issue at the forefront of my heart and mind, as well as other ministries that could serve people. I just knew I wanted to help others like the ones who had helped me.

I started serving in mission work locally, nationally, and eventually internationally. While on a youth mission trip in Florida, the Lord placed me with a church that had an entire city block of houses behind their church. Each house met the needs of a separate ministry. There was dental and medical care, a food pantry, a clothing closet, and a crisis pregnancy center. It was while standing on the steps of that crisis pregnancy center that I had my "aha moment." You might say that I felt God give me a nudge, or maybe it was more like He bonked me on the head. I knew that this was something that the Lord wanted me to pursue.

I thought I was doing enough, but God challenged me to do more.

Sometime later, God had put other like-minded and passionate people in my path. We prayed together and for one another. One day, the Lord sent a tall Texan Baptist Builder to First Baptist Church of Monticello, the church I was a member of at the time. We were expanding our buildings and they were there to assist. Upon meeting Mr. Bill Piggot, he asked me what I was passionate about. The answer was easy for me. I let him know that I love helping women, babies, and children in crisis situations. He responded, "That's awesome." After a pause, he said, "Well what are you doing about it?" I don't know if he saw my shock, but I'm sure it was written all over my face. I very meekly replied, "I am praying about it with several other people." Mr. Piggot's next words cut me deeply. "Robin, don't you think it's time to start doing something about it other than just praying?" I was rattled to my core. At this point, with my heart in my throat, I stammered out, "Yes sir, it is. Will you pray with me and for me about this?" He agreed wholeheartedly.

Within two weeks God began to show Himself. An anonymous check arrived and provided a nice-sized donation that got the ball rolling for a local crisis pregnancy center. I and fifteen passionate local pastors, women, and men met regularly to spearhead this new ministry's beginning. As things progressed, it was time to start accepting applications for a "qualified" director. We mentioned a few names and prayed that God would lead us as we chose. After one meeting, a pastor approached me and told me to submit my own resume for the position. "I believe you are able to do this," he told me. I was shocked. This felt completely out of nowhere for me. I had never considered being that involved. I only wanted to be on the board of directors maybe, and to be a crisis advocate volunteer. Certainly nothing more. I was an X-ray technician with no qualifications or knowledge of ministry. I've never had an abortion, how would I be able to connect with the women and their situations? I thought ministry was for holy people, not someone like me. Even my then-pastor recommended someone else for the position. I was sure that I would not apply, and that even if I did I would never be chosen. Praise God that He knew better than I did!

In 2009, because of the faithfulness and collaboration of many bold Pro-Life brothers and sisters in Christ, HopePlace Monticello opened its doors as a crisis pregnancy and parenting center. Our goal was to make a difference, one life at a time. To my surprise, the first life was my own. Against all odds, I had been named director and I felt like I was in uncharted waters. But God was the one who called me out of the boat. Even today He continues to reach down and tilt my chin up so my eyes will focus on Jesus and His strength. He equips me in the midst of many insufficiencies to serve Him and those in need of hope, encouragement, and the grace of our Savior.

I almost wasn't born, but God rescued me.

A year into serving at HopePlace, I learned that my life was not the only one in my family born out of a crisis situation. My grandparents, similarly to my own parents, had faced an unexpected pregnancy with my mother. With moments to spare, my grandfather raced into the room to stop the procedure. My mom was only seconds away from having her beating heart stopped. Abortion has a ripple effect. It can end generations to come. My mom, like me, was a life saved. She was treasured, adored, and had a purpose. She was given life and made the same decision for me when she faced that circumstance. My biological father wanted to choose abortion, but my mom chose life.

Eight and a half years later, the Lord moved Darren and me to Newport, Arkansas. While there, local pastors and individuals asked if I could assist in starting another HopePlace. I said I would pray about it, and you can guess how that went. HopePlace Newport is two and a half years old now.

God moved us once again, this time to Jonesboro. I knew He wanted me to stay faithful and keep serving His people in need, and I continue to trust Him in that. I believe God as we meet the needs of women, babies, and families in the Newport area. It is a melting pot of all sorts of people: women with unexpected pregnancies, families in crisis situations, women coming out of prison, women in residential drug rehabilitation, and the children that are affected. God reminds me often that it is by His grace I am where I am. He reminds me to continue serving him, to press on, to keep connecting with these women and children. To tell them that I, too, am a life saved. I was abandoned by my daddy—a drug addict and dealer who spent time in prison. Through God, I was able to forgive this man. I was called into a life of ministry. He continues to use me still as my life ripples into His everlasting purposes. I surrendered to serve Him with my whole heart. One day at a time, one life at a time.

I was lost, but God saved me.

God uses the story of my childhood to tell a restoration story bigger than I could ever imagine, and that I now share with you. Just as God has restored me, He can also restore you.

Below: Robin has served as director of HopePlace Newport for the past 2 ½ years.

I have a question for you, something to truthfully answer...If you were to die today, do you know where you will spend eternity? Heaven, or hell?

If you are unsure, there is a way to know 100%. You need to know that you know without a doubt that you are a child of the King. He wants to be your Father, your Daddy, your Savior. Come to Him, let Him give you rest and a peace that you know for certain your eternity will be spent in heaven.

It is easy to become a child of God, You can say a simple prayer like this one and mean it with all of your heart and you shall be saved and born again by His grace. He can give you a clean pure heart.

Dear God, I know that I have sinned and I want to ask for Your forgiveness. I believe that Jesus died for my sins. I now want to accept Your offer of eternal life. I will follow Jesus as my Savior and try to obey Him in all that I do. Thank You for my new life. In the name of Jesus, I pray. Amen.

Now if you just prayed this prayer and you meant it with all of your heart...you now know that you know 100% you ARE a child of God. Welcome, you are now part of God's family.

If you have chosen to take this step today, we want to walk with you going forward. Please give us a call at (870) 972-0220 or email us at staff@walnutstreetbaptist.org.

Family Crafts

with Ms. Mary

We had a blast putting together these crafts for you, and we hope your family has just as much fun doing them together! We've put together some kits with all the supplies needed for these crafts that will be available at the Kids' Welcome Desk through the month of December. Make sure you take a picture of your creations and post them to the Walnut Street Kids Facebook group!

Popsicle Stick Christmas Trees

You will need:

3 colored popsicle sticks • 24-25 pom poms/pony beads • Cardboard "tree trunk" • Star cut out • Piece of yarn • Hot glue and hot glue gun (for parental use)

Instructions:

Arrange popsicle sticks into a triangle and hot glue together.

Flip over and secure tree trunk to the base of the triangle and the yarn to the top point of the triangle.

Return to the original side and secure the star opposite the yarn. Arrange pom poms or pony beads to your liking and secure with hot glue.

Cinnamon Reindeer Ornaments

You will need:

3 cinnamon sticks • 2 googly eyes • 1 red or black pompom ball • Piece of ribbon • Hot glue and hot glue gun (for parental use)

Instructions:

Arrange cinnamon sticks in an upside down triangle with "antlers" sticking above the stick placed horizontally.

Use the hot glue/gun to secure cinnamon sticks together.

Glue on your googly eyes, pompom for nose, and glue or tie your piece of ribbon on the back.

Let's play Christmas Charades

Three Ways to Play:

Cut out this page for a fun family game to play! On the back you'll find lots of Christmas-themed charades to act out. Cut the slips of paper out and use a hat or bowl to draw from.

1

Classic Charades

Divide into teams. Have each team take turns having one member draw a phrase from the bowl and act it out while their team tries to answer. No talking or sounds allowed! Each player has 60 seconds to get their team to answer correctly. Each correct guess is one point for the team. After all the slips have been drawn, the team with the most points wins!

Fishbowl

Played just like classic charades EXCEPT divided into rounds. In Round 1, players can talk to describe the phrase, but can't say any words in the phrase. In Round 2, players can only use one word. In Round 3, Players can only act out the phrases. BONUS ROUND: To increase the difficulty or break a tie, you can play one more round where players can only use sounds to get their team to guess the phrase. The team with the most points at the end of all rounds wins!

Speed Charades

Players divide into two teams and sit in a circle with their team. Divide phrases in half into two bowls, one for each team. On "Go," have each team start passing the bowl around and acting out phrases. The first team to correctly guess all the phrases wins!

Favorite Family Traditions

We asked Walnut Street families about their favorite Thanksgiving and Christmas traditions and loved all the fun responses we got! We hope you are reminded of spending holidays with your families. Maybe you'll get inspired to start a few new traditions of your own.

The Dunnam Family

Our favorite tradition that we have established in the last couple of years is picking out our Christmas tree the day after Thanksgiving. We go to the Christmas tree farm in Jonesboro and spend the morning finding our tree. They usually serve hot chocolate there, and we always grab a cup and walk around looking for the perfect one! When we find it, we cut it down and take it home. Once we get it home, we spend the day decorating the tree. It's a day we always look forward to!

Wesley & Elizabeth Dunnam

The Roberts' Family

The holidays have always been a favorite time of the year in our household. You always know the Holiday season is upon the Roberts' family when we bring home the Samaritan's Purse shoeboxes, which we shop for together as a family. Christmas, however, is the best time of all. We start with the Festival of Christmas at Walnut Street with as many of us attending that can. Shea, Jenifer, Maddie, and I set aside a Saturday for which we invite our friends to join us for Candy Making Saturday. On Christmas Eve, my side of the family comes to our home where we have a non-traditional meal: usually ham, baked beans, dips, and chips. Christmas morning, Rick and I and whoever is at our house open gifts and then get in the car and drive to Bono, Brookland, and Paragould to see what Santa brought all the grandkids. We then go back to the house, prepare lunch with turkey and ham and all the fixings, and Lisa, Kim, Shea, and Jenifer and their families join us for lunch. Throughout the day, the other kids will stop in.

We never forget to talk about the real reason for our celebration. The birth of Jesus is portrayed in the ornaments on the tree, the nativity scenes, and the conversations in the room. The reading of Luke is done by our children to their children after they go home in their family time. We are blessed with a large family that currently includes nine children, two in-laws, and six grandkids and are fortunate that most of them live close enough to participate in all the festivities.

Rick & Jan Roberts

The Schmautz Family

One of our favorite traditions is picking out a Christmas Ornament for the year. Each year we have been married, we've chosen an ornament that has the year written on it that symbolizes the past year. So when we put up the Christmas tree each year, we can walk down memory lane!

Each Christmas Eve, we live stream the Christmas Eve Service from the church that Levi's father pastors. He tells the Christmas Story from the perspective of a wise man. After the service, we stay up late and bake cinnamon rolls.

On Christmas morning, we make sure to have a surprise in our stocking. Usually, it's a coconut or a piece of fruit!

Levi & Kellye Schmautz

The Mason Family

We have accumulated several holiday traditions within our family. We love being the first to call family members and wish "Merry Christmas Eve Gift!" (and expecting one). We've hung stockings one by one as our family grew to number 25. We always hunt for the Christmas pickle in the tree.

But my favorite, most heartwarming tradition is before our Thanksgiving or Christmas meal. Our large family encircles our layout of food, holding hands and thanking God for giving us Christ Jesus, and the innumerable ways he has blessed our family! This brings overflowing joy to my heart, knowing the hearts of my children and grandchildren are connected to the Lord! God is so good!

Ed & Joan Mason

Judy Cole & Family

My favorite holiday is Christmas. I was always excited because I wanted to stay up so I could see Santa bring in my presents, but my parents insisted that I go to sleep. On Christmas morning I would jump out of bed and head to the living room to see my pretty new doll and her wardrobe -- made by my mother.

One year, not only did I get a pretty new doll, I got an electric train as well. As I grew older, I looked forward to having my older sister and their families to share in the excitement. After the excitement, we all sat down to a beautiful lunch totally prepared by my mother. Everything was handmade. Then the afternoon was filled with showing off my doll's fashions and running my train.

This season brings thoughts of traditions, family, and of course great food! Our very own Mrs. Ginger Landreth is sharing a few of her favorite recipes to make during this time of the year. These goodies are tried, true, and sure to be a hit at your next holiday gathering.

Fried Pies

FILLING

INGREDIENTS

Peach:

- 8oz dried apricots
- 6oz dried peaches
- $\frac{3}{4}$  cup sugar

Apple:

- 14oz of dried apples
- $\frac{3}{4}$  cup sugar

Chocolate:

- 2 cups sugar
  - 6 Tbsp cocoa powder
  - 1 stick butter, melted
- Mix together to form a paste and skip directions below.

DIRECTIONS

In a large saucepan, combine fruit and sugar. Add enough water to cover fruit. Cover pan and cook on low heat until fruit is falling apart. Remove lid and continue cooking until water is evaporated. This can take 45 minutes to an hour and can be done the day before.

CRUST

INGREDIENTS

- 4 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 tsp salt
- 1 cup shortening
- 1 cup milk

DIRECTIONS

In a large bowl, mix together flour and salt. Cut in shortening until mixture is crumbly. Mix in milk until the dough forms a ball. Roll out dough and cut into approximately 6 inch circles (Ginger's Note: I use a bowl to cut mine). Place 2 tablespoons of filling on crust, fold and seal using your fingers dipped in water. Press down edges with a fork.

TO COOK

Heat 2 cups of vegetable oil in a skillet over medium heat. Fry a few pies at a time, browning them on both sides. Drain pies on paper towels.

Dressing

INGREDIENTS

- 1 pan of cornbread (usually 2-3 Jiffy mixes)
  - ½ loaf white bread
  - 1 pkg Stove Top herb stuffing mix
  - ½ cup onion, finely chopped
  - 3 stalks celery, finely chopped
  - 1 stick butter
  - 1-2 Tbsp sage, to taste
  - 3 eggs, beaten
  - Salt & pepper to taste
  - Chicken broth, added last
- If you want to add meat, 2-3 cups cooked chicken, chopped

DIRECTIONS

1. Preheat oven to 350°F.
2. Grease a 9x13 baking dish.
3. Saute onion and celery in butter until celery is tender.
4. Crumble cornbread and tear white bread into pieces.
5. Mix all ingredients.
6. Use broth to soak dressing until almost soupy.
7. Pour into prepared baking dish.
8. Bake 30-45 minutes or until browned.

Bread Pudding

PUDDING

INGREDIENTS

- |  |   |
|--|---|
| • 8 cups stale bread, torn into pieces | • 4 eggs, beaten                            |
| • 1 stick butter, melted               | • 1 tsp vanilla                             |
| • 1 ¼ cup sugar                        | Cinnamon-sugar: 2 tsp cinnamon, ¼ cup sugar |
| • 2 cups milk                          |   |

DIRECTIONS

1. Preheat oven to 350°F.
2. Beat egg, sugar, milk, and vanilla until well blended.
3. Spray 9x13 pan with cooking spray.
4. Spread bread pieces evenly in pan.
5. Pour egg mixture over bread.
6. Sprinkle with cinnamon-sugar mixture.
7. Bake at 350°F for 35-45 minutes until golden on top.

BUTTERMILK SAUCE

INGREDIENTS

- |                     |                    |
|---------------------|--------------------|
| • 1 stick butter    | • ½ cup buttermilk |
| • ⅔ cup sugar       | • 1 tsp vanilla    |
| • ½ tsp baking soda |                    |

DIRECTIONS

Melt butter in heavy saucepan. Combine baking soda with sugar and add to butter. Add buttermilk and heat over low heat to just before boiling. (Ginger Note: If it boils, it will boil over.)

Pour buttermilk sauce over warm bread pudding and enjoy.
